

Southern Health System recovers $11.7 million in cash

Challenge

A nine-facility health system in the South had a dedicated internal underpayment team working claims through their own variance tool. The program was functioning – but leadership wanted to be certain revenue wasn't slipping through gaps their tool couldn't see. They needed a partner who could work alongside their team and surface what a variance-only approach consistently misses.

Solution

The health system engaged Revecore to supplement their internal team. Revecore deployed a multi-prong approach – payment variance, billing and coding review, and zero-balance denial recovery – on accounts outside the reach of their variance tool. The result: $11.7 million in cash recovered that the health system's program wouldn't have found on its own.

Results

By extending recovery efforts beyond traditional variance analysis, the health system realized substantial additional reimbursement.
